Many thanks for taking the time this evening to really listen and comprehend my points of view on so many topics. Thankyou for all the advice re the Kid's educational needs , we will definitely be checking out the links and keep you updated. As the mother of a dyspraxic and predyslexic, not only am I always on the hunt for a way to deliver/ reinforce the school's imparted knowledge base in a way of thinking that is out of the box , sometimes I feel I have to reinvent the proverbial box along the way with them. I do not subscribe to one size fits all , I truly believe that a good teacher will deliver the same concept in a fun and interactive way that is malleable and flexible enough it can be understood in different ways by all learners. I am glad to have made your acquaintance , and I thank you again for your pointers and I look forward to many more discussions between us - all four of us including the all important receipents, my two resident student- for us to discuss and debate different topics. Jim , I truly believe you are one in a million , or is it one in the six billion , a true giving , paying it forward humanist.You are an inspirational teacher & educationalist.

This is a well deserved thank you from Lagos, Nigeria. You are building a bridge , a sturdy and scalable systemic bridge that will allow everyone from anywhere regardless of their strengths and weaknesses ; but because of their peculiar strengths to feel proud about himself/herself by succeeding at their own pace, at whatever they set out to do. It is of particular importance because a lot of children in Africa where I come from are falling through the proverbial crack because of a non -inclusive "one -size -fits -all" method of teaching/learning and the contextual challenges here.

I am a virtual education enthusiast and envision a life long learning that is biased towards every individual's learning peculiarities towards marketable skills and entrepreneurship .

It's always reassuring to encounter a philosophy of education that is similar to one's own. In addition to his views of learning, I am particularly interested in Jim's approaches to discipline in the classroom, which present an all too rare positive approach to building relationships and providing a good role model.

As for the Ofsted formula-driven approach to lessons, I also find myself supporting Jim's views. The Ofsted culture is, in my opinion, a negative one which does its best to stem creativity, and to reduce learning to an stultifying behaviourist model. The most effective way to kill a lesson is to start off with the learning objective.

The tips on teaching and the resources you make available for us to use are also brilliant.

Thank you so much for your help and support

Hi Jim,

Happy birthday sir.. funny how life is, I was one of your first senior school pupils when you started Lincoln

School in 1970. I was a little lad of 11, well never little really but you know what I mean..

I can remember the time that we drew a bunsen burner and why the flames were either very blue with a cool part in the middle, proven by suspending a match over it, which did not catch fire. God I was impressed with that. Or the flame was a driftly yellow. That's why I became a Quantity Surveyor and not a science teacher cos I still don't understand why!!!

Great to see you last Saturday and you were 'one of the lads' and girls of course.

Such a great night and lets hope we can do it again soon.

Actually, what is strange is that I came to the school a few years ago and talked to you about my twin sons on an open evening and that was unreal.

Great bloke, lots of respect.

Smile, joke, don't be too serious, and live it to the full. That is everyone.

Neil

Hi Jim,

Great website, shame I didn't know about it when my offspring were going through the learning process, it would have saved me having to pretend that I knew what I was talking about!

During a project in chemistry we were "forced" to do at school, you taught me about soap. To be honest, at the time I wasn't that interested. Whether it's a coincidence or not I don't know, but I went on to work at a laundry (where a lot of what I learned came in useful). I am now Managing Director of the laundry which is a multi million pound organisation and I've been here for 28 years and loving every minute. Fate or your inspiration?

Enjoyed meeting you at the reunion the other night, you looked a lot younger and a lot fitter than most of your ex pupils! Happy birthday.

Hi Jim

You never taught me as I wasn't very scientifically minded & dropped chemistry at the earliest opportunity but we discussed that on Saturday night. Reading the comments from those you did teach, perhaps I might have viewed chemistry & science very differently - I'm sure I wouldn't have wasted precious educational resources shoving mini test tubes down the plug hole during a detention!

Anyway, great to have met you & I wish you a great birthday & hopefully see you at the next reunion.

best wishes

Fiona

Good work by you in lasting the pace through to 3am, particularly on coke. Did the E's keep you hyper all night? I love the website with the bubbles on fire, but I particularly like the water/wine/water experiment. Perhaps you would be good enough to show me the first stage sometime as I don't really need how to know how to turn it back to water!! Anyway Jim, as I've said it was fantastic to see you & so many of your ex colleagues & hopefully it won't be too long before we can get together again. Keep up the great work with the website & I promise to keep smiling & be happy. Take care, Rick Mumby

After 35 years I met again with Jim and had the chance to thank him for all that he has done for me, only to find that he's still at it!

The help and support he continues to offer via this fantastic learning web site is terrific. Pure dedication and a wish to share his knowledgde is a precious thing. I for one still have a lot to learn and will be a future visitor.

It happens to be Jim's birthday this week and so 'many happy returns'! Hope your big day goes WITHOUT a 'BANG'!

Visitor Comments: Jim, congrats on building a supportive empire of science teaching and communication. Your website is a tour-de-force! And bonus points for the antique MIDI file of Baker Street -- nice touch ;-).

I was a student of Jim's at LCHS, doing my A-Levels 1998-2000. Although I ended up an astrophysicist (did an MSci and PhD at Durham Uni. after leaving LCHS, now plying my trade in Melbourne), Jim's chemistry lessons and bow-ties were always the highlight of the school week.

Jim's results are the best endorsement of his methods, but I think the real key was Jim's infectious enthusiasm for all things chemistry. You take far more from a lesson with an enthusiastic mentor than a disinterested figure sat rigidly at a desk at the front of the classroom.

Keep it up Jim, but don't forget to enjoy a bit of a retirement...

Rob

Hi Jim,

Well I've had a busy weekend and I am sure it will continue now with my new found post as ECM. Conference this year was an amazing experience. Not only was I able to stand in front of hundreds of people from all over Europe, I was also able to put humour into my speech too 😊 (they laughed anyway). A few years ago I could not have imagined being able to get up and speak like that. The Open University has certainly changed my life and continues to do so.

The professor who came to speak about his space ship he had sent to saturn 🚀 was very interesting. He was also funny too! He gave us a signed photo of him with his ship and we auctioned it off. We made well over a thousand pounds for the financial fund which helps students. (and before you ask yes I took your cards, which almost got me into trouble 😊 which I shall tell you about Thursday 😊 😊 😊)

Anyway a new site for you 📺 <http://www.open.ac.uk/openlearn/home.php> it is a new site the Open University now has to share with people. There are loads of resources on the learning space and lab space. I haven't gone through it all, it would take too long but there does seem to be some very useful resources there.

Hope you are ready for our night of celebration. 🍷🍷🍷 I feel I have been doing nothing but celebrate as a big fuss was made of me at conference. A few students said they couldn't imagine me teaching any other science but biology (wonder what they meant by that?) 🙄🙄

Take care Jim, see you Thursday

Joy xx

Not only in this wonderful site but the time (your time) which you invest unconditionally to others. Tomorrow is your day and I'm so very pleased to have been requested to be part of it. But I am sure a day isn't long enough for these people to experience "Jim", but what I am sure of is that you will touch their lives like you have touched ours making it a truly rewarding experience for them.

My message is as follows: I am Lucy from China. I work at Korean Iriver factory as HR manager. Our factory locates in SSL Sci. &Tech .North industry Park Dongguan, Guangdong, China. Our factory specialized in Mp3& Mp4,brand name "iRiver". They sell very well all around the world. If you are interested in our products ,you could surf our website www.iriver.com or www.ssl.gov.cn . In addition, if you want to place an order, pls kindly contactxiaoling.shing@iriver.com

I enjoy learning English. The helpful resource here is very limited, also it is hard for us to find much useful information in English. We'd like to know more about different countries, their culture and background. We are so glad to find this website which is great and helpful for us to let more people know about our products and each other as well. We shall also widen our vision and learn a lot from it.

This website is very interesting, I love it.

Hey Mr B, glad to see your still keeping young children educated on the net!!!!

As always a cool site, i sent this to my cousin who used it to revise for his GCSE's he loved it. 👍

Just a quick note to let you know i passed my first year, and i am now studying genetics instead of zoology, and yes i still go on your web site, its a fantastic place to start looking for information. Now if you could just expand into the realm of statistics i'd be set for life!

Miss you and school.

Keep teaching sir, kiddies need a good teacher like yourself.

Luv natalie

Hi Jim,

Thanks for sending me the web site. I found there is a lot of things to learn. I'm very interested in it , especially the mind mapping. It seems very useful! You know I'm also a teacher but I work in Hong Kong. I am sure your web site not only can help me but also my students . And I will send your website to my colleagues too.

Keep building your web site, please! 😊

Cheers,

A "fantastic" and very well structured website, and it has been such a help to me revising for my sats. You are a real "credit" to LCHS and they are lucky to have you as one of their teachers. It really shows your "dedication" to your job, helping your pupils revise and through difficult exams.

You are a great teacher and you should be proud of yourself and give yourself a pat on the back!

Many thanks Mr Baker, Tom Pyrah 🤔 👍 🗣️
